Chesterfield's own Carol Lester seems to familiar surroundings as one of several artists to play this month's SOS (Songwriters Original Showcase) concert. The lineup will include talents such as Philadelphia native Ben Arnold, pianist Stephen DiNapoli, singer-songwriter Debra Lee, the funk of Vujahay, and Ambler's own Rick Dexum. This show will be held on Sunday, June 24 at Act II Playhouse in Ambler.

Lester, the pseudonym of Carol Shultz, has earned a name for herself locally. She now resides in Jersey City, NJ, and plays many small venues throughout the Big Apple. Coming off Jersey City's "Culture Arts Festival" and "Artist on the Move," a showcase in New York City sponsored by Starbucks Coffee, Lester had time for an interview by phone.

"Independent artists call their music very carefully," says this rising star. Her CD can be described as a warm and intimate emotional medley of songs where Ambler Man-like vocal styles meet Joni Mitchell-esque poetic and melodic structures. "Spill My Soul" (Carol Lester, 2000), her debut release, has been bringing her name to local audiences and to millions on TV. When Lester was asked to record a track for a USA Network Movie, "Secret Cutting," starring Rhea Perlman and Katherine Helmond, she had no idea that her song would affect so many viewers. Countless e-mails came in, requesting information on the artist and the song. "When I perform I like to touch my audience with my music and I like to be touched by their reactions," she says.

She names Cat Stevens, Stevie Nicks, Led Zeppelin, Joni Mitchell, James Taylor and Joni Clegg as influences on her songwriting. "These artists have intimate delivery. I hear who they were and I connect with them," adds Lester, who has been writing music since she was a young girl. Like many teenagers she grew up listening to music with a meaning behind it. "I love artists who are totally themselves."

"Spill My Soul" took seven months to record. Currently, Lester is putting together a follow-up album. "My favorite songs to play live are 'Spill My Soul' and 'Accept Them.' I teach the audience the chorus and I tell them to sing," explains Lester. "I love when the audience participates."

In the coming months, Lester will appear live on WQPN 98.5 FM's "Women's Hour" with Michaela Mignani; she is also scheduled to play some summer festivals and is in the process of cutting tracks with Latin sensation Luis Miguel. She is also a full-time mother, a part-time community activist and she relates with yoga classes. Fans can listen to her tracks from her album on her website: www.carollester.com.

Lester has no plans of leaving Jersey City. She loves the fact that all the connections are there at her fingertips. "I do wish there were more fans, though!" jokes Lester. She has built a career following where the lives and is ready to move down the East Coast. Her first stop is Ambler and the SOS showcase. "At these showcases the artist performing tend to inspire each other," tells Lester. "This is a listening venue." Egg Harbor resident and close friend Tim Dowd will join her on occasion the night of the show. Don't be surprised if you are enjoying the lyrics of "Honeysuckle Skimmer" or "To Be High" when all of a sudden Lester breaks into a cover of Chaka Khan's "Tell Me Something Good!"

"My responsibility is to vary the sound, tempo and emotions," continues Lester. "I want the audience to enjoy themselves as well as express myself."
